Subject Fw: URGENT - holding line for the weekend

Peter - A quick note that I have spoken to Penelope Irving, they did not receive a copy of Lord Archer's report, and SofS office is now closed. We have received nothing here either. This has to reinforce our line that we cannot comment on a report due on Monday and which we have not seen. - Patrick

Peter - That is fine. Key point is that the report is not published until Monday at 10.30am, and we were not given an advance copy for review. - Patrick

Subject URGENT - holding line for the weekend

Hi Patrick

As discussed, please can you clear the below statement for over the weekend - clear that we have not yet seen the report.

DH spokesperson:

"We have great sympathy for the patients and families affected by contaminated blood products in the 1970s and 1980s, and will study the findings of Lord Archer's report in detail when we receive it.

"Every reasonable step to minimise risks from blood transfusion has been taken, and robust screening measures are in place to protect patients."

"This Government has gone further than any other administration in making information available, which has included meeting with Lord Archer and cooperating with the inquiry where possible.

On the documents, if asked:

Only 35 of the 4,500 documents released to the Archer enquiry so far have been withheld in full or in part – less than one per cent. The majority of these were withheld because they contain personal information, legal advice or on health and safety grounds.

Thanks,

Peter
