

From: DHMail@dh.gsi.gov.uk

Subject: Response to your Query : - Ref:DE00000416679 - Fw: Why aren't the widows (bereaved prior to August 2003) of Hepatitis C haemophiliacs deserving of UK government recognition and justice

Date: 19 June 2009 at 10:00

To: Gregory Murphy

DE00000416679

greg

Dear Mr Murphy,

Thank you for your email of 27 May to the Health Ministers about the Archer report. I have been asked to reply.

I was sorry to read about the death of your father.

This Government deeply regrets that patients acquired serious infections as a result of NHS treatment some two or more decades ago, and extends every sympathy to the patients and their families who have suffered as a result of the very treatments that should have transformed their lives for the better.

The Government understands the sense of grievance that some people may feel as a result of what has happened, and that there are deeply-held opinions on the appropriateness and timeliness of decisions and actions taken many years ago by governments and others. This Government believes that patients received the best available treatment at the time. In his report, Lord Archer did not find the government of the day to have been at fault, and did not apportion blame.

The Department is committed to ensuring that people with haemophilia, and others who have been infected with hepatitis C and/or HIV from blood and blood products, are well cared for, supported in their communities and fully informed about how best to look after their health. The Department gave very careful consideration to Lord Archer's recommendations to see what more it could do, and has made as positive a response as possible. The Department does not intend to revisit its response.

The response to Lord Archer's report has been published on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publichealth/Healthprotection/Bloodsafety/index.htm

I hope this clarifies the Government's position on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Paul Larkin
Customer Service Centre
Department of Health

The original of this email was scanned for viruses by the Government Secure Intranet virus scanning service supplied by Cable&Wireless in partnership with MessageLabs. (CCTM Certificate Number 2007/11/0032.) On leaving the GSi this email was certified virus free.

Communications via the GSi may be automatically logged, monitored and/or recorded for legal purposes.