

ALPHA Therapeutic Corporation has taken over the former activities and interests of ABBOTT Scientific Products Division on August 15, 1978.

While there is no business association between the two companies, it should be emphasized that continuity of service and quality is ensured by ALPHA Therapeutic Corporation having taken over all the personnel, premises, plant and know-how and expertise of the former ABBOTT division.

ALPHA Therapeutic Corporation is a strong, well-integrated organisation with significant technological resources for research and development of new products. Some of these resources were unavailable to us before and we are committed to playing an ever more vital role in the future of blood component therapy.

We have appreciated your valued business relationship in the past and want you to know that you can be assured of continued high quality biological products and uninterrupted service by ALPHA in the future. The same management, scientific, technical, marketing, sales and production personnel will continue to serve you.

For our European customers ALPHA Therapeutic GmbH has been recently established in Germany and will function as the European headquarters office. Any inquiries regarding Profilate or any other blood fraction product should now be directed at ALPHA Therapeutic GmbH or at ABBOTT Laboratories Ltd., Queenborough. We intend to have a distribution service to our British customers within a short period of time and we'll keep you informed as soon as possible.

We look forward to a continuation of the excellent working relationship we had in the past.

Yours sincerely,
ALPHA Therapeutic GmbH
