Dear Frank

As you know, I was one of several people who suggested that it was unwise to accept an educational grant from one company to support the activity of a particular working party. I think it is, in principal, unwise of the UKHCDO to accept any grant from a particular company which lay down how that grant should be spent. As you know, I am also unhappy about the Wyeth grant for the database. Perhaps the answer is to have a central fund to which concentrate companies can contribute and which is ear marked for educational activities. The respective working parties can apply to that fund for support.

In my view we need to remain promiscuous with respect to industry.

With kind regards.

Christine Lee
