I would be very grateful if you could review this 69 year old lady urgently for follow-up and further investigation. She first presented one month ago with a three month history of tiredness all the time.

Examination was non contributory but I arranged bloods including TFTs, random glucose, plasma viscosity, calcium, and U&Es which were all normal. A FBC showed normal Hb but mildly reduced platelets at 148. The most significant result was a mild hepatic picture with an ALT of 89; alk phos and bilirubin were normal.

As a result I did an auto immune profile and CMV which were normal. Her plasma C reative protein was normal and a hepatitis screen showed she was hepatitis C positive.

On further questioning she did have a blood transfusion for anaemia secondary to menorrhagia approximately 25 years ago. I had already requested a routine abdominal ultrasound but I would be very grateful for your review at your earliest convenience to discuss the follow-up and long term plan of care for this lady.

Her past medical history includes:

ACTIVE PROBLEMS

06.02.1995 H/O: thyroid disorder NOS :HYPOTHYROID :Other
25.09.2002 Hepatitis C antibody test positive:
